

Band Room

Elementary School

The elementary school band room gives beginning musicians what they need for ensemble practice as well as small group lessons with their music teacher. Music chairs with straight backs help students learn to keep proper posture as they play, while contoured seats keep them comfortable. Adjustable music stands hold sheet music in place and can be easily adjusted to match each student's height. A conductor's chair and staff-lined dry erase board allow the music teacher to direct learning musicians and present musical concepts to the whole class.

Requirements for a Great Band Room

For students, the band room should provide the comfortable yet structured seating necessarily for good posture while playing musical instruments. It should be easy for students to move in and out of their seats, and to maneuver around the room as needed. Music stand should be adjustable to accommodate students of various heights.

For teachers, the band room should feature wide walkways so they can move between band sections to offer mentoring when needed. There should be space at the front of the room for a conductor's chair, ensuring the teacher can see the whole class easily. Shelving and sheet music storage should be available to keep the room organized, and a teacher's desk provides a space for lesson planning and personal storage.

For administrators, the band room should be furnished in a way that meets the needs of their school's music program. Products must be readily available and delivered on time. Installation should be quick and efficient

Band Room Solutions from School Outfitters

School Outfitters' research and development team designed a band room that caters to the needs of students and teachers alike. We've selected furnishings that will accommodate the structure needed for musical ensembles, but also keep students comfortable as they play. A dedicated musician's area, director's area and storage area make creating a great band room simple.

The musicians' area seats small and large music ensembles so they have a clear view of the director.

- Music chairs with straight backs ensure proper posture while playing. Contoured seats keep students comfortable during practice.
- Music stands should be height-adjustable, and sturdy enough to support band folders as well as sheet music.

The director's area should be positioned so that the music teacher can be easily seen by all students in the room.

- A teacher's music chair allows the conductor to relax between periods of conducting, or to conduct from a seated position if needed.
- A music-lined dry-erase board features a set of staff lines, making it simple for the conductor to provide musical examples to the class, or to teach aspects of beginner's music theory.
- An adjustable-height music stand holds the conductor's music.
- A teacher's desk gives the music educator a place to plan lessons, select music, make assessments or meet with individual students.

The storage area provides students with a place to safely store instrument cases during class and keeps sheet music organized and easy to find.

- A lockable storage cabinet secures materials that may require teacher supervision. Teachers may also opt to use this cabinet to secure their personal belongings.
- Lockable filing cabinets keep sheet music organized.
- Open shelving provides a place where students can leave their bookbags and instrument cases, keeping them out of the way during band practice.
